Introducing the HRA

An HRA is a spending account that works with your health plan. Your employer owns and funds the account. You use the money to pay for eligible healthcare expenses.

How you benefit from an HRA

-  Your employer funds the account, tax-free. You don't put your own money into the HRA.
-  You can use your HRA money for anyone covered by your health plan.
-  You don't pay taxes on HRA dollars and it's not part of your income.

Extra dollars for your eligible healthcare expenses

How your HRA works in five simple steps

- 1 Your employer funds the HRA and decides what it will cover.¹
- 2 When you see a doctor, the office sends a bill (claim) to your health plan to process.
- 3 You receive an explanation of benefits (EOB) from your plan and pay for any out-of-pocket costs if you have funds in your HRA.
- 4 You pay the bill and submit your receipts to Further.
- 5 You can be reimbursed for a portion of the expenses from your HRA.²

All systems go!

Use your HRA for these:

The HRA typically covers the same expenses that your health plan covers. Eligible expenses generally include:

- Over-the-counter medications, supplies, and some feminine hygiene products
- In-network doctor visits
- Inpatient or outpatient hospital care
- Diagnostic exams
- Prescription medications

Heads up!

You can't use your HRA for these:

- Health insurance premiums
- Costs that aren't considered eligible healthcare expenses as defined by the Internal Revenue Service

NOTE: Remember, your employer ultimately decides which medical expenses are eligible. It's a good idea to check your plan coverage before receiving care to make sure you can use your HRA for your medical expense.

¹In addition to restrictions imposed by law, your employer may limit what expenses are eligible for reimbursements. It is the members' responsibility to ensure eligibility requirements as well as if they are eligible for the plan and expenses submitted.
